

Charles C. Morrison Scholarship

“Man does not live by math alone”
C. Morrison

Charles C. Morrison, a Nebraska native, began his teaching career in 1965 as a math teacher at East Junior High School (currently East Middle School). He is a former pitching coach for professional league baseball.

Charles came to teach at Hinkley High School in 1971 until his retirement in 2007. Charles loves to teach and truly believes in young people and education. He displayed this by not taking a single sick day in 42 years.

Charles has a philosophy, after many years of teaching is that humanism is important and there are two types of teachers; people teachers and subject teachers. Charles considers himself a people teacher as his students' classroom environment always come first. He believes in a very positive relationship and creates a family atmosphere for his students.

Charles has a great sense of humor and desires to leave behind a legacy of his love of teaching at Hinkley by giving this scholarship to a deserving student who also desires to teach.

Currently Charles is continuing teaching, while in retirement, at Community College of Aurora and Hinkley High School.
